

BANGABASI COLLEGE MAGAZINE:

प्रणिपातेन परिश्रमेण सेवया

By Reverence : By Questioning : By Service

Vol. XVII.

AUGUST.

No. 5

1919.

THE MONTH.

5/10/19

All the classes are now in full work and complete arrangements have been made for the tutorial and practical work of regular as well as plucked students. This is high-pressure work for both students and teachers, and already the less energetic among them are eagerly looking forward to the advent of the Puja Vacation for a temporary cessation of activities.

The Economics Association of the College is now a well-nigh established Institution. It is the outcome, pure and simple, of the efforts of the students of the 3rd and 4th year classes who belonged to the Economics section in the last four years, efforts which were directed by the Professor of Economics, Babu Devendranath Mukerjee, whose well-merited popularity amongst the boys of the Economics section and self-sacrificing devotion to the cause of the Association deserve to be recorded in the pages of the College Magazine with grateful thanks. It is a matter of common experience that the success of an organization, big or small, mainly depends upon the devotion and earnestness of only a few, very few, often one of the members of it, but it would be invidious to nam> these few devoted workers of the Association, some of whom have left the College after graduation, leaving behind them worthy successors to continue their work. One concrete example of the tangible product of the united efforts of the organization is the formation of the nucleus of a Library of Economic literature which belongs to, and is the property of, the Association. The 3rd and 4th year students of the current session have begun their work with the earnestness of their predecessors and it is hoped that the Society and its library will grow from more to more under their care and will be transmitted to their successors in a more flourishing and solvent condition than they found it.

THE STUDENTS' FUND.

The Students' Fund owes its existence to the earnest endeavours of the students of the College who have passed out, in order to help the more needy amongst them in their pursuit of knowledge under most adverse circumstances. The more energetic of them in the several classes formed themselves into committees to raise from amongst their fellow-students voluntary monthly subscriptions varying from annas four to two or even one anna each per month and pool their collections and deposit them in the Savings Bank through the Secretary of the Fund, Professor Bhababibhuti Bhattacharyya who has all along been untiring in his efforts to help, organise and administer the Fund. Needy boys were helped in the past in various ways, such as providing them with the means of purchasing books, paying their examination fees, College fees &c.

That such a Fund is a necessary part of the corporate life of a College will be patent to all who will pause to ponder over the matter. The College-School, it may be added, has such a Fund which is doing great service to the less fortunate ones among the School-students. The balance of last year's surplus at the Bank is a poor sum of about Rs.25/ and it behoves the students of the present session to bestir themselves now so as to form themselves into committees in each section of each class and